Jonathan Dey
The Miner Linnaeus Sherff Professor of Botany

Recipient of the Kemp Foundation Award for Teaching Excellence — 2009

Professor Jonathan Dey has traveled the country in his studies of botany and has discovered, described and named several lichens through his research. A graduate of Oregon State and Duke universities with degrees in botany, his doctoral research centered on lichens of high mountain areas of the Southern Appalachians in North Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

Beginning his career as a secondary school teacher in Nigeria with the Peace Corps, Dr. Dey came to Illinois Wesleyan in 1974. In the letter nominating him for the Teaching Excellence Award, Dr. Dey was said to impress with his "ability to maintain his own scholarly research program, to successfully use this [research] to enhance student education, and, in particular, to attract students to his field of research." Known on campus for his dedication to his students, he has led them into fieldwork for decades.

"He embodies the spirit of John Wesley Powell, the idea that work in the field is vital for students to learn about the natural world," said Provost Beth Cunningham, comparing Dr. Dey to the famed explorer and former Illinois Wesleyan professor who was the first to lead students on field trips in the 1800s. "Dr. Dey has taken students to places such as the Alleghenies upland area of West Virginia and the Great Smoky Mountains National Park in Tennessee nearly every summer, where students have the opportunity to work side-by-side with him."

Dr. Dey was a member of the scientific team that developed a model for using lichens as an indicator of air quality in forest ecosystems in the middle Atlantic and southeastern United States as part of the National Forest Health Monitoring Program. He now works on contributing to the macrolichen inventory of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park as part of the All Taxa Biodiversity Inventory (ATBI) of the park. He has published numerous articles in peer reviews, journals and technical reports.

During his tenure with the University, Dr. Dey has served as acting chair of the biology department twice. He has contributed to many committees, including the Promotion and Tenure Committee and the Faculty Development Committee. He also served as faculty visitor to the Board of Trustees. From 1975 to 1995, he was a medical technology liaison with BroMenn Hospitals and the hospital schools of medical technology affiliated with Illinois Wesleyan. He also served from 1975 to 2001 as the liaison with Duke University, on the Forestry/Environmental Management 3/2 Program.

A member of the American Bryological and Lichenological Society, Dr. Dey was appointed associate editor for their publication, The Bryologist. He is also a member of Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society, the British Lichen Society and the International Association of Lichenologists.

Excellence in teaching is a hallmark of Illinois Wesleyan. The Teaching Excellence Award was established to recognize this strength and to honor one faculty member at this occasion who brings spirit, passion and scholarship to the art of teaching. Today we honor Jonathan Dey.

This program is dedicated to the Class of 2009
and to students who have earned scholastic and activity honors.
