HONORS
DAY

Dr. Thomas A. Griffiths

The 1990 Century Club honoree is a gifted teacher, skilled researcher, and a nationally recognized expert on bats. In the classroom, Dr. Griffiths teaches by interpretation and clarification, always expecting the very best from his students, and his classes in histology, evolution, and human evolution are among the most popular courses among biology majors and non-majors alike. Despite the demanding content, students choose his courses because of Griffith's carefully prepared lectures, his ability to hold their interest by a change of pace or the introduction of interesting sidelights, his skill in stimulating discussion in the classroom and laboratory, and his inspired determination to convey the excitement and value of the sciences.

Named a full professor of biology in February 1990, Griffiths came to Illinois Wesleyan in 1981 following an instructorship at the State University of New York—Plattsburgh and a similar position in the Department of Zoology at the University of Vermont.

He was educated at Bates College in his native Maine, where he received his bachelor of science degree in 1973, earned his master's at Vermont, and his Doctorate of Philosophy in zoology at the University of Massachusetts in 1981. Griffiths was elected to Phi Kappa Phi and Sigma Xi honorary societies.

Among his professional and scholarly associations are memberships in the American Society of Mammalogists, the Society for the Study of Evolution, the Society of Systematic Zoology, the Society of Vertebrate Paleontology, and the Association for Tropical Biology.

He has published more than a dozen articles in scholarly journals, is a reviewer for several, and has been a Research Fellow of the American Museum of Natural History in New York in its Department of Mammalogy since 1984.

Griffiths has effectively combined his gifts as a teacher with his extensive research work in chiropterology (the order of mammals comprising the bats). During 1988, for example, he and three IWU biology students were awarded a grant by the Illinois State Natural History Survey to study the distribution and biology of bat species in 10 Illinois counties, an experience that encouraged one of those students to pursue graduate work in biological research.

He serves as editor of Bat Research News, a quarterly newsletter with an international circulation, and has been a reviewer of grant applications for the Division of Biotic Systems and Resources of the National Science Foundation.

At Wesleyan, Dr. Griffiths has been active in faculty affairs, currently chairing the Personnel Council and its subordinate Tenure and Advancement Committee, serving on the Freshman and Pre-Major Coordinating Committee for the Liberal Arts, the Pre-Engineering Committee, and the Faculty Advisory Committee. He is also a member of the University's Strategic Planning Steering Committee.

This program is dedicated to the Seniors and to the students who have earned scholastic and activity recognition.
