

Apr 18th, 9:00 AM - 10:00 AM

Current Event Integration to Facilitate Historical Concept Literacy

Donald DeSalvo
Illinois Wesleyan University

Leah Nillas, Faculty Advisor
Illinois Wesleyan University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/jwprc>

Part of the Education Commons

DeSalvo, Donald and Nillas, Faculty Advisor, Leah, "Current Event Integration to Facilitate Historical Concept Literacy" (2015). John Wesley Powell Student Research Conference. 7. <https://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/jwprc/2015/ESposters/7>

This Event is protected by copyright and/or related rights. It has been brought to you by Digital Commons @ IWU with permission from the rights-holder(s). You are free to use this material in any way that is permitted by the copyright and related rights legislation that applies to your use. For other uses you need to obtain permission from the rights-holder(s) directly, unless additional rights are indicated by a Creative Commons license in the record and/ or on the work itself. This material has been accepted for inclusion by faculty at Illinois Wesleyan University. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@iwu.edu.

©Copyright is owned by the author of this document.

Current Event Integration to Facilitate Historical Concept Literacy

Donald DeSalvo and Leah Nillas*

Educational Studies, Illinois Wesleyan University

Research Question

How can current events be integrated in high school history curriculum to facilitate and develop historical concept literacy?

Literature Review

- “The most important aspect of learning in social studies consists of identifying concepts which students can use as aids in thinking through solutions to present-day problems” (Deikan & Haligas, 1966).
- Students need to grasp the existence and importance of differing perspectives if they are to be able to understand historical issues (Levstik & Barton, 2005).
- Online discussion boards allow students to discuss historical sources in a modern context (Luckhardt, 2014).
- Recent history allows students to contextualize the topic within their modern perspectives (Mosborg & Toledo, 2009).

Methodology

- 3 freshman World History classes; 2 sophomore American History classes
- 5 lessons taught during a semester of student teaching
- Student work and field notes are used to assess historical concept literacy development.

Lesson Plans

Lesson 1: Fear Mongering and ISIS News

- Fox News ISIS video supplements learning of fear mongering

Lesson 2: Espionage/Sedition and NSA Political Cartoon

- Political cartoon on NSA surveillance programs introduces espionage and sedition in post-WWI United States

Lesson 3: Martial Law and Thailand News

- Thailand martial law news video supplements learning of martial law under Robespierre in France

Lesson 4: Absolutism and North Korea Documentary

- North Korea documentary introduces students to absolutism before European Monarchs of 1800's

Lesson 5: Cultural Blending and Tibet News

- Tibet news video supplements learning of cultural blending in China during the Ming Dynasty

Results and Data Analysis

- Current event integration needs a formal assessment to accurately judge literacy development.
- Current events as supplements need direct, guided connections to historical content.
- Introducing the concept through current events facilitates student inquiry and positive engagement.
- Students did not often use the concept, but did correctly refer to the concept.
- Findings confirm existing literature regarding current events facilitating historical discussions (Luckhardt, 2014).

Conclusion

- Current events facilitate engagement with historical concepts which has a positive correlation with literacy development.
- Historical concept literacy needs more development in history curriculum.
- Future research should track historical concept literacy development over time to assess growth using current events.