Carole A. Myscofski
Professor of Religion

*Recipient of the 2001 DuPont Award
For Teaching Excellence*

"I like to provide students with incredible challenges and believe professors should not deliver answers to students, but should give them the best questions possible," said Carole A. Myscofski, professor in the Department of Religion and the 2001 recipient of the DuPont Award for Teaching Excellence at Illinois Wesleyan University.

Myscofski, the university's first director of the Women's Studies Program, believes that students need to have a basic understanding of the liberal arts before being able to improve their understanding of more specific areas of expertise. "They have to deal with all aspects of life, including cultural issues and historical change," she says, "and that provides the grounding in a well-rounded education."

Born in Kansas City, Myscofski grew up in the Chicago area and received her bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Chicago—an A.B. in history and philosophy of religion (1975), and both an A.M. (1976) and Ph.D. (1981) in history of religions from the U of C's Divinity School, considered one of the best programs in religious studies in the U.S.

Myscofski first began teaching in 1981 as a lecturer and visiting assistant professor at Loyola University. She taught as an assistant professor at the University of Missouri-Columbia from 1985-90 before joining Illinois Wesleyan's faculty in 1991. "Ten years ago, when I came to interview, I had an incredibly positive sense of the place," Myscofski said of her first impressions of Illinois Wesleyan. That feeling has only grown. "I have great colleagues who are not only good teachers but also some of the top scholars in the country."

At Illinois Wesleyan, Myscofski teaches classes on distinctive topics such as Cults in America, Religion and Magic, Women and Religions, the History of Islam and The End of the World. Myscofski's studies include Classical Greek and Hellenistic religions and apocalypticism, with a concentration on messianism in the republic of Brazil. She says she first became interested in religion when she took a course in Greek mythology as a high school freshman. "I was interested in why people turn to religion in times of need, how they find religion and how their connection with it transforms their lives," said Myscofski.

Myscofski's Ph.D. dissertation on "When Men Walk Dry: The Portuguese Messianic Tradition in Brazil," was published in the Academy Series of Scholars Press in 1986. She also has completed a series of articles on marriage and sexuality, women and magic, and women's confessions to the Brazilian Inquisition. As part of her research, Myscofski has made extended visits to Brazil. Her current research projects include an examination of the colonial Brazilian concepts of women's bodies and the nature of virtue, and a study of women and work in religious discourse.

Myscofski, who has been vice president and president of the Midwest American Academy of Religion (AAR), is editor of the AAR Academy Series for books published in conjunction with Oxford University Press. She has served as the editor for New Religions, for the AAR-sponsored HarperCollins Dictionary of Religion, published in 1995.

Today, for her dedication to the ideals and philosophy of higher education and the liberal arts, Professor Carole Myscofski is recognized with the university's highest teaching honor.

*This program is dedicated to the Class of 2001
and to students who have earned scholastic and activity honors.*
