(1828-1902)

From hearts aflame, our love we pledge to thee,
Where'er we wander, over land or sea;
Through time unending, loyal we will be—
True to our Alma Mater, Wesleyan.

When college days are fully past and gone,
While life endures, from twilight gleam til dawn,
Grandly thy soul shall with us linger on—
Star-crowned, our Alma Mater, Wesleyan.

Laurie Garrett

Journalist — Science and Medical Writer

Laurie Garrett is the only writer to have ever been awarded all three of the Big “P’s” of journalism — The Peabody Award, The Polk Award, and the Pulitzer Prize. Yet, she was a Ph.D. candidate at the University of California, Berkeley, in immunology before completely changing career paths to work in communications.

A recipient of the Pulitzer Prize in Explanatory Journalism in 1996 for her article on the Ebola virus outbreak in Zaire, Garrett received the Polk Award in 1998 for her 30-part series in Newsday on the public health care crisis in the former Soviet Union, entitled “Crumbled Empire, Shattered Health.”

As a freelance journalist, Garrett has reported on some of the world’s most prominent scientific issues for National Public Radio, the British Broadcasting Corporation, CBS, Omni, The Washington Post, and The Los Angeles Times. She has also appeared on such television shows as Dateline NBC, The McNeil/Lehrer Newshour, and Nightline. Since 1988, Garrett has had an award-winning career as a health and science reporter for Newsday.

Garrett’s book, The Coming Plague: Newly Emerging Diseases in a World Out of Balance, published in 1994, tracks the progression of “hot” viruses, or mutations of already-existing strains of disease that resist cures. She examined how vulnerable American cities are to potential epidemics and what members of the global community can do to prevent such outbreaks.

The Coming Plague was named “One of the Best Books of 1994” by both the New York Times Sunday Book Review and Library Journal. Peter Jaret of The Washington Post said, “Garrett knows her stuff. She’s as skillful at explaining the tricks bacteria use to elude antibiotics as she is at tracing the complex genetic clues that hint at how the AIDS virus emerged.”

In April 1997, Turner Original Productions aired a four-hour documentary entitled The Coming Plague, which Garrett co-produced. The program was subsequently nominated for the prestigious International Documentary Award. In October of that same year, Garrett hosted the five-hour PBS series Great Minds of Medicine, which aired on 80 television stations nationwide and was published in concise form in Health magazine.

Garrett was a visiting professor of science writing at the University of California School of Journalism at Berkely in the fall of 1997. She was named a National Public Health Hero by the University of California School of Public Health in 1998.

Presser Hall

From a 1931 booklet of pen sketches of Illinois Wesleyan University

Presser Hall, home of the School of Music, was built in 1929-30. It was made possible by a challenge gift from the Presser Foundation of Philadelphia. Its auditorium contains a Schantz three-manual pipe organ, the gift of V.C. Swigart in memory of his wife. The 548-seat auditorium is named in honor of former Dean Arthur L. Westbrook. Other facilities include studios, practice rooms, classrooms, listening rooms, and the music library.
