ABOUT THE AUTHORS . . .

Monica Cowart will graduate in 1992 with a major in philosophy. This year she completed a Research Honors Project in the philosophy of science on instrumentalism and realism. Next year, Monica will attend the University of Georgia to pursue a Ph.D. in philosophy.

Jonathan Moore will graduate in 1992 with a double major in English and history. This year he completed a Research Honors Project on fundamentalism in urban America. Next year, Jonathan will be attending the University of Chicago's Divinity School to work towards a Ph.D. in theology or religious history.

Kari Vanderzyl will graduate this May with a double major in sociology and English. This year she presented her independent research findings on Bloomington's sixth grade criminal justice education project at IWU's annual research conference. Kari plans to attend law school next year to further pursue her interest in criminal law.

Ryan Nichols is currently a sophomore with majors in philosophy and religion. Next year he hopes to do independent research into the historical dating of the Gospel of Mark. Eventually, Ryan hopes to pursue graduate work in philosophy.

Carol Brockman is currently a freshman English major, with a strong interest in history as well. She and several underclassmen have formed an informal creative writing group that meets once a month to develop ideas and share each other's work.
