Dr. Robert S. Eckley
President Emeritus

In 1968, at age 47, Dr. Robert S. Eckley stepped down from a key position with Caterpillar Inc. to become one of the youngest presidents in Illinois Wesleyan's history. Dr. Eckley, who holds degrees from Bradley, the University of Minnesota, and Harvard, guided the university through eighteen prosperous years. July 31, 1986, marked his retirement and the appointment of the current president, Dr. Wayne Anderson.

His tenure—longest in Wesleyan history—was distinguished by qualitative improvements in students and faculty. The campus doubled in size, the endowment increased seven-fold, annual giving was quadrupled, and alumni giving increased more than eleven times. In addition to these accomplishments, many major buildings are credited to his administration. The completion of Sheean Library, Mark Evans Observatory, Alice Millar Center for Fine Arts, Evelyn Chapel, and the early construction stages of the Fort Natatorium all fell under his direction.

Since his retirement, Dr. Eckley has accepted and completed a one-year fellowship with the Brookings Institution in Washington D.C., where he conducted economic research. He was awarded emeritus status by the University's board of trustees on October 26, 1987, and today he will receive an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree.

Dr. Eckley can now be found teaching a course in international business at IWU two days a week. He also serves, as a member of the board of directors of State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co., and Central Illinois Public Service Co. Nell B. Eckley was honored for her contributions to the beautification of campus buildings and grounds by the renaming of the Nell Eckley Student Lounge in Memorial Student Center.
