

Illinois Wesleyan University
Digital Commons @ IWU

IWU Authors Bookshelf

Winter 2-12-2015

The Open Mind: Essays in Honour of Christopher Rowland

Kevin Sullivan
Illinois Wesleyan University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/bookshelf>

Part of the Religious Thought, Theology and Philosophy of Religion Commons

Recommended Citation

Sullivan, Kevin, "The Open Mind: Essays in Honour of Christopher Rowland" (2015). IWU Authors Bookshelf. 81.

<https://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/bookshelf/81>

This Book is protected by copyright and/or related rights. It has been brought to you by Digital Commons @ IWU with permission from the rights-holder(s). You are free to use this material in any way that is permitted by the copyright and related rights legislation that applies to your use. For other uses you need to obtain permission from the rights-holder(s) directly, unless additional rights are indicated by a Creative Commons license in the record and/ or on the work itself. This material has been accepted for inclusion by faculty at The Ames Library at Illinois Wesleyan University. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@iwu.edu.

©Copyright is owned by the author of this document.

Sullivan Edits Book Honoring Oxford Theologian

Feb. 10, 2015

BLOOMINGTON, Ill.— Illinois Wesleyan University Chair of Religion Kevin Sullivan is co-editor of a new book of academic essays honoring eminent British scholar, theologian and priest Christopher Rowland.

The Open Mind: Essays in Honour of Christopher Rowland (Bloomsbury/T&T Clark, 2015) draws on the research interests of Rowland, who recently retired as Dean Ireland's Professor of the Exegesis of Holy Scripture, The Queen's College, Oxford.

Famed for his innovative approaches to matters textual and non-textual, Rowland is the author or co-author of nearly 40 books. His pioneering book The Open Heaven: A Study of Apocalyptic in Judaism and Early Christianity (SPCK, 1982) redefined the concept of apocalypticism and opened new vistas on the understanding of first-century Christianity, Sullivan said.

The Open Mind is a "Festschrift," according to Sullivan. The term, borrowed from German, can be translated as a celebration publication. Sullivan said such collections are fairly common in Biblical studies, and noted The Open Mind is the third such book to appear on the occasion of Rowland's retirement. "The fact that one man receives three such volumes speaks volumes in itself," the editors write.

Kevin Sullivan

The majority of The Open Mind's essays were written by Rowland's former doctoral students, including Sullivan and his co-editor Jonathan Knight, who is Research Fellow of the Katie Wheeler Trust. The significance of the Jewish contribution to developing Christian ideology is critically assessed, including the original Jewish sources on the earliest Christian belief. Sullivan also wrote the chapter entitled "Jesus, Angels and the Honeycomb in Luke 24:42."

"I thoroughly enjoyed working on this project," said Sullivan. "Bloomsbury/T&T Clark is a preeminent academic publisher in the UK, so we were pleased to get the volume into their well-established Library of New Testament Series."

Sullivan is also associate professor of religion at Illinois Wesleyan. He completed his Ph.D. at Oxford in 2003 and joined the faculty at Illinois Wesleyan in 2006. He holds master's degrees from both Notre Dame University (theology) and the University of Michigan (near Eastern Studies), where he also earned bachelor's degrees in economics and near Eastern Studies.

Sullivan's research interests focus on late Second Temple Judaism, the New Testament and Christian Origins, and especially Jews and early Christian angelology.

He is also the author of Wrestling with Angels: A Study of the Relationship between Angels and Humans in Ancient Jewish Literature and the New Testament (Brill Academic Publishers, 2004).