The Authors

Bobbie L. Arndt is a senior Spanish and international studies double major, studio art minor. After graduation she intends to flee from the creditors' notices while being an au pair or tutoring English in Spain, inevitably to return to further defer her overwhelming debt in graduate school.

Joseph T. M. Gray will graduate in 1997 with a double major in anthropology and music. After graduation, Joseph will enter a doctoral program in anthropology. His research foci will be the archaeology and archaeomusicology of the prehistoric southwestern United States.

Laura Kesselring will graduate in May with a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in art. She spent a semester in London as an art gallery intern and intends to continue in that field after graduation. Eventually, Laura plans to pursue painting in graduate school.

Shailushi Baxi is a junior biology and philosophy double major. After graduation, she plans to attend graduate school and receive an MA degree in philosophy. After that, she may go either to medical school or pursue further graduate studies in medical ethics and bioethics.

Heather Blaha is a junior majoring in English with a minor in art. Last fall she studied in London where her interests in literature and creative writing grew even more. She hopes to continue traveling and possibly pursue writing in graduate school.

Hope Hoffman is a junior English major with a writing concentration, a dance minor, and an anthropology minor. She hopes to graduate with a majority of her brain cells left intact and work in public relations for non-profits and tree-huggers and artists and others who need people willing to work for pennies.
