WGLT Interview Mike Seeborg, Recession and Pandemic March 30, 2020

Mike Seeborg: If the pandemic goes on for a long- long- a long enough time, then- then it's gonna be harder to- to bounce back from a- a steep recession. The economy really got slammed and is- is in sort of an induced coma I would say, and uh, pretty soon we need life support and- and this relief legislation will bring some life support to the economy. This one seems to be uh particularly hard on those- those people because it's the sectors that hurt the most, they've really been slammed. So minority workers and less-educated workers generally have been hit hard by this uh... this pandemic-induced recession.
