Letter from the Editor

Letter From The Editor

I would like to take this opportunity to welcome all Wesleyan graduates of the Department of Economics, current economics majors, and economics enthusiasts to the first issue of the Park Place Economist. The Journal's purpose is to provide alumni, current economics majors, and prospective students a lens through which to view the wide-ranging opportunities and activities of the Department of Economics and the Economics Society. Furthermore, the Editorial and Advisory Boards envision the Journal as a medium for students and alumni to publish comprehensive and stimulating articles or commentaries pertaining to the field of economics.

The 1993 edition of the Park Place Economist intends to provide its audience with a cross-section of works, ranging from editorials and research papers, to senior projects and completed articles in the Research Honors Program. The Journal also will highlight one or two alumni each issue, and Wesleyan graduates of the Economics Department are encouraged to submit "mini-bios" for this purpose. The Journal staff thanks those who submitted articles for consideration and hope that the first issue provides an intellectual stimulus for future contributions. All views and opinions expressed in the Park Place Economist are solely those of the authors.

Bruce T Bennett, Editor in Chief
