Background: The closing act of Illinois Wesleyan's tenth year of the Blue Moon Coffeehouse will be "Sonny Ochs Presents the Songs of Phil Ochs," featuring six national touring artists of which, Sonny, is the sister of the late musician and political activist Phil Ochs. The performers will sing songs by Phil Ochs as well as their own original material. Phil Ochs, who was known for his wry, heartfelt lyrics and uncluttered melodies, was part of the second wave of New York topical folksingers in the 1960s. It has been reported that once singer-songwriter Bob Dylan bodily threw Ochs from a cab for sounding like a "singing journalist," and that after Dylan stopped singing protest music and folk music faded, Ochs embraced progressive struggles more strongly than ever.
