

Apr 18th, 2:35 PM - 3:35 PM

Campaign for Male Beauty: The Influence of Advertisement on Dimensions of Male Body Image

Michelle Meehan
Illinois Wesleyan University

Natalie Smoak, Faculty Advisor
Illinois Wesleyan University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/jwprc>

---

Meehan, Michelle and Smoak, Faculty Advisor, Natalie, "Campaign for Male Beauty: The Influence of Advertisement on Dimensions of Male Body Image" (2009). John Wesley Powell Student Research Conference. 16.

<https://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/jwprc/2009/posters2/16>

This Event is protected by copyright and/or related rights. It has been brought to you by Digital Commons @ IWU with permission from the rights-holder(s). You are free to use this material in any way that is permitted by the copyright and related rights legislation that applies to your use. For other uses you need to obtain permission from the rights-holder(s) directly, unless additional rights are indicated by a Creative Commons license in the record and/ or on the work itself. This material has been accepted for inclusion by faculty at Illinois Wesleyan University. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@iwu.edu.

©Copyright is owned by the author of this document.

Poster Presentation P34

CAMPAIGN FOR MALE BEAUTY: THE INFLUENCE OF ADVERTISEMENT ON DIMENSIONS OF MALE BODY IMAGE

Michelle Meehan and Natalie Smoak*
English Department, Illinois Wesleyan University

Distorted body image perception is a growing problem in today's society, with advertisements that display a "thin-ideal" having a significant effect on the issue. Recent advertising campaigns have been designed to improve self perceptions of body image and are now the focus of research. Dremonas (2008) concluded from her research of the Dove Campaign for Real Beauty, that such a campaign actually decreased self perceptions of body esteem in females. Adding to the research of Dremonas (2008), the present study utilized 50 male, undergraduate students to examine the effects of the Dove Campaign for Real Beauty on men. Participants either viewed the Dove commercial Evolution in its entirety, Evolution in part, or a control commercial. The men then completed self-report questionnaires to measure perceptions of their body and esteem. The results of the present study are pertinent because there is currently a discrepancy in findings regarding male body image. Researchers have found that males who view attractive men exhibit decreased body esteem, whereas men who view attractive women exhibit increased body esteem. As the problems associated with decreased body satisfaction continue to grow, it is important to more clearly differentiate between successful and harmful advertising techniques so as to better improve the pervasive media that effects esteem.