

Spring 4-29-2013

Phi Beta Kappa Liberal Arts Scholar Awardees

Katherine Filippo
Illinois Wesleyan University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/news>

Recommended Citation

Filippo, Katherine, "Phi Beta Kappa Liberal Arts Scholar Awardees" (2013). News and Events. 2186.

<https://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/news/2186>

This Article is protected by copyright and/or related rights. It has been brought to you by Digital Commons @ IWU with permission from the rights-holder(s). You are free to use this material in any way that is permitted by the copyright and related rights legislation that applies to your use. For other uses you need to obtain permission from the rights-holder(s) directly, unless additional rights are indicated by a Creative Commons license in the record and/ or on the work itself. This material has been accepted for inclusion by faculty at Illinois Wesleyan University. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@iwu.edu.

©Copyright is owned by the author of this document.

Phi Beta Kappa Liberal Arts Scholar Awardees

April 29, 2013

BLOOMINGTON, Ill.— On Saturday, April 20, Sarah Carlson and Maria Klingele were presented the inaugural Phi Beta Kappa Liberal Arts Scholar Award at the 24th annual John Wesley Powell Student Research Conference luncheon. John Churchill, secretary of Phi Beta Kappa, the nation's oldest academic society, was the keynote speaker at the event.

According to the Illinois Wesleyan chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, this award fosters and celebrates student research that “engages, translates and bridges academic disciplines and/or crosses traditional academic boundaries.” Each applicant for this award submitted a research paper, either a senior seminar paper, honors research paper, or senior-level independent research paper; a work of art, music composition, film, collection of poetry or research that stemmed from experiential learning.

Sarah Carlson

“The Phi Beta Kappa motto is “Love of learning is the guide of life.” My last four years at Illinois Wesleyan have taught me to strive to embody that message in everything that I do,” said Carlson, a senior anthropology major from Galena, Ill.

Carlson’s paper explored the cultural significance of personal adornment for the Ilongot peoples of the Philippines, a project she began over the summer as an intern at The Field Museum in Chicago. Examining these ornaments also led her to an analysis of how the “historical context and racial climate of the collecting culture is an important component in understanding the stories these objects have to tell” and the necessity for museums to practice “active engagement with members of the culture that produced the objects and with museum visitors to display the meanings that objects can communicate.”

Maria Klingele

Klingele, a senior French and francophone studies major from Glen Ellyn, Ill., analyzed Maryse Condé’s autobiographical fiction Le cœur à rire et à pleurer. The novel details Condé’s journey from childhood to adulthood and the societal contradictions she experienced living in both the Caribbean and Paris. In her paper, Klingele focused on Condé’s contributions to psychoanalytic theory, feminist literary criticism, and post-colonial theory in her rejection of the society’s discourse of the “Other.” Klingele argued that “through rejecting these marginalizing theories, she inhibited écriture féminine, a revolutionary form of feminist writing.”

“This research taught me about myself and I hope that others can benefit from the message that Maryse Condé conveys. I think it relates to everyone as it discusses the multiple oppressions working within our society,” Klingele said.

For additional information, contact Sherry Wallace, director for news and media relations, at (309) 556-3181.

Contact: Katherine Filippo, '12, (309) 556-3181 univcomm@iwu.edu