Apr 16th, 10:00 AM - 11:00 AM

Use and Awareness of Diverse Curricular Materials at Illinois Wesleyan University

Jazmyne Kellogg
Illinois Wesleyan University

Meghan Burke, Faculty Advisor
Illinois Wesleyan University

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/jwprc

Part of the Education Commons, and the Sociology Commons

Kellogg, Jazmyne and Burke, Faculty Advisor, Meghan, "Use and Awareness of Diverse Curricular Materials at Illinois Wesleyan University" (2016). John Wesley Powell Student Research Conference. 2.
http://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/jwprc/2016/oralpres3/2
USE AND AWARENESS OF DIVERSE CURRICULAR MATERIALS AT ILLINOIS WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY

Jazmyne Kellogg and Meghan Burke*
Sociology Department, Illinois Wesleyan University

This study examines the desires and challenges associated with including greater racial diversity among curricular materials at Illinois Wesleyan University. In this paper I build upon an established model of multicultural curriculum integration in order to stress the importance of inclusive curricular materials. I explore whether or not students of color place a larger emphasis on diversity than their white counterparts in relation to the curriculum. In other words, do they see it as a need or area of improvement? And do they want their curricular materials to reflect their racial identity? I surveyed students in order to gain a better understanding of their perceptions of diversity and inclusion in the classroom and professors in order to understand some of the challenges associated with creating racially diverse curricular materials. I argue that despite these challenges, it remains essential for curricular materials to actively reflect the racial backgrounds of all students in a positive and respectful manner that does not simply serve to uphold systems of oppression, as this is crucial to the academic success of all students.