BLOOMINGTON, ILL.--The second annual Alumni Career Day at Illinois Wesleyan University will be Friday, Oct. 10.

From 25 to 30 alumni are expected to meet with faculty and students informally and in class to relate their own experiences in the business world. The program is sponsored by the Career Education Center.

Kate Romani, coordinator of career education, organized the annual event as an extension of the center's program to bring professionals in various fields in contact with Wesleyan students in an effort to help students plan their own careers.

Among the alumni who will participate will be artists, lawyers, a president of a chemical corporation, an aircraft engineer, an insurance actuary, a bank executive, a high school coach, a psychiatrist, a college admission counselor, a securities trader, a writing consultant and a hospital public relations officer.
