Harmonic Language Arts: Music Inclusion in the Secondary English Language Arts Classroom

Julianne Sthay
Illinois Wesleyan University, jsthay@iwu.edu

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/crisscross

Part of the Arts and Humanities Commons, Life Sciences Commons, Physical Sciences and Mathematics Commons, and the Social and Behavioral Sciences Commons

Recommended Citation

Available at: https://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/crisscross/vol2/iss1/8

This Article is protected by copyright and/or related rights. It has been brought to you by Digital Commons @ IWU with permission from the rights-holder(s). You are free to use this material in any way that is permitted by the copyright and related rights legislation that applies to your use. For other uses you need to obtain permission from the rights-holder(s) directly, unless additional rights are indicated by a Creative Commons license in the record and/ or on the work itself. This material has been accepted for inclusion by editors of CrissCross at Illinois Wesleyan University. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@iwu.edu.

©Copyright is owned by the author of this document.
NAME: Julieanne Sthay

Date: April 15, 2014

Year/Major: Senior; Music, English and Secondary Education

Research Supervisor(s): Jeanne Koehler

Title of Research Paper/Project: Harmonic Language Arts: Music Inclusion in the Secondary English Language Arts Classroom

Email Address: jsthay@iwu.edu

Below please provide a paragraph overview/abstract of the project you are submitting and a paragraph that explains the interdisciplinary nature of the project and/or how it crosses boundaries. Please type your description and limit it to 1 page. Email the completed application and the final paper to Rebecca Gearhart: rgearhar@iwu.edu or deliver the project to CLA 226 by Friday, April 4th at 5:00 p.m.

Abstract: Students are required to take four years of high school English, and the mandatory nature of English coupled with a scripted curriculum negatively impacts student interest and motivation. English teachers who incorporate music into their academic teaching are finding music can improve student engagement, motivation, and learning (Goering & Burenheide, 2010). In this qualitative self study of student teaching, I explored questions including whether the addition of music is worthwhile in the English classroom, how it can be done, and what the benefits and drawbacks of doing so are. Based upon field notes, lesson plans, student feedback, and research, I found particular music categories worked best to connect students’ lives with their learning and helped motivate them in the classroom.

This project is unique in that I try to incorporate music into the English classroom. While entering college, I conflicted between teaching music or English, but ultimately found that I didn’t have to sacrifice either. I knew personally that it was very difficult for me to separate the two, and decided to combine them into my teaching to create a more engaging atmosphere for students while letting my personality show. This project is unique in that there is very little research out there on this topic, despite the deep connection between music and the language arts. I hope that despite the severe budget cuts to the fine arts, the incorporation of music into my core subject will help students learn more about both.