His films include playing the speechwriter with a crisis of conscience in Dave (1993) with Kevin Klein, the straight-laced Colonel Hicks in the blockbuster Godzilla (1995) and a foil for Charlie Sheen as Lt. Commander James Block in the comedy spoof Hot Shots! (1991). His other movies include the Oliver Stone-directed Nixon (1995), I Heart Huckabees (1998), Live Free or Die (2006), The Black Dahlia (2006), All the King's Men (2006) and Lions for Lambs (2007) with Tom Cruise and Meryl Streep.

Born in Chicago, Dunn came to Illinois Wesleyan in 1973 as a theater major. He appeared onstage at Illinois Wesleyan in such productions as Ladys Not for Burning and as John Proctor in The Crucible. A member of the class of 1977, Dunn was a football player and member of the Sigma Chi Fraternity while at Illinois Wesleyan.

Craig C. Hart

As member of the Illinois Wesleyan University Board of Trustees for more than 25 years, Craig C. Hart watched over the unprecedented growth of the campus. Joining the Board in 1981, he became Board President in 1994. During his tenure, Hart saw campus facility improvements such the Shirk Center, the Harriett Fuller Rust House, Hansen Student Center, and The Ames Library. He worked closely with four presidents to shape the vision of the University, including the late President Minor Myers jr.

Hart stepped down as Board President in May of 2006, and that October the University renamed its career-advising center the Craig C. Hart Career Center in his honor. A connection between Hart and Myers will continue when the Hart Career Center will move into the new Minor Myers jr. Welcome Center when it opens this fall. Hart retired from the Board of Trustees in 2007, and now serves as an emeritus trustee.

The retired president and chief executive officer of Champion Federal Savings and Loan and founder and chairman of Heritage Enterprises, Hart has been dedicated to the renovation to downtown Bloomington and to the well being of the University and its home in Bloomington.

Marjorie Agosín

A professor of Spanish at Wellesley College in Massachusetts, Agosín has been a guest lecturer at IWU on three occasions and was nominated to receive an honorary degree by the Department of Hispanic Studies and students of the Spanish Club.

She is the author of more than 20 poetry collections, seven works of fiction, many critical essays and books on literary criticism and anthologies of Latin American women writers. One of her most significant and well-known books, which won the Alta Prize for Poetry, is Circles of Madness: Mothers of the Plaza de Mayo (1992), which is dedicated to the Argentine women whose children disappeared during the military dictatorship that began in 1976.

For her work as a human rights activist, Agosín received the United Nations Leadership Award in Human Rights in 1998 and the Gabriela Mistral Medal of Honor for Lifetime Achievement from the government of Chile in 2002. A documentary based on her book Scraps of Life: The Chilean Arpillera received a Peabody Award, and on her second visit to Illinois Wesleyan's campus, Agosín brought her collection of arpilleras (folk tapestries which tell of the bravery and hardships of the Chilean women) for display on campus.

Sidney Epstein

The work of architect and engineer Sidney Epstein is seen throughout the world. Chairman of the family firm A. Epstein and Sons International, Inc., Epstein has contributed to the design and expansion of buildings across the globe, from the Maine Montparnasse Tower in Paris to the Harold Washington Library, O'Hare International Airport and McCormick Place in Chicago.

More than a successful businessman who expanded his small family firm into an international corporation, Epstein is a philanthropist, giving back to his community in Chicago for more than 50 years. A co-founder of the Chicago Youth Centers for at-risk youth, Epstein is also active on the boards of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, the University of Chicago Hospitals, the Michale Reese Health Trust and the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry. He is also a director of the Crown Family Foundation and the Polk Brothers Foundation.
