Apr 14th, 11:00 AM - 12:00 PM

"Myth, Monster, and Memory -- Pan's Labyrinth and the Legacy of the Spanish Civil War"

Erin Cox
Illinois Wesleyan University

Carmela Ferradáns, Faculty Advisor
Illinois Wesleyan University

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.iwu.edu/jwprc

Cox, Erin and Ferradáns, Faculty Advisor, Carmela, ""Myth, Monster, and Memory -- Pan's Labyrinth and the Legacy of the Spanish Civil War"" (2007). John Wesley Powell Student Research Conference. 3.

This Event is brought to you for free and open access by The Ames Library, the Andrew W. Mellon Center for Curricular and Faculty Development, the Office of the Provost and the Office of the President. It has been accepted for inclusion in Digital Commons @ IWU by the faculty at Illinois Wesleyan University. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@iwu.edu.
©Copyright is owned by the author of this document.
Evil stepparents, child-eating monsters, and a magically dangerous maze- all in 1940's fascist Spain? In Pan's Labyrinth (El laberinto del fauno), the young Ofelia's quest to find her "real" father amidst the aftermath of the Spanish Civil War leads her to cross the lines that separate fantasy and reality. The backdrop of her story - the last stand of defeated republicans against the triumphant fascist forces - is presented as a noble battle of ideology brought to mythic proportions. This presentation will examine how the film asks us to question not only how we remember historical events (as fact, fiction, or myth), but the political and social implications of doing so.